This version is structured differently to the original copy found in this folder. I've aimed to create an alternate option in the hope that this may better suit the needs of some classes. If you choose this option, the self-checking feature is not included. Your students will need to check-in with you or somebody to gain access to each clue with this design. If you would like the self-checking option, please use the original copy found in your downloaded folder.

Please note: The worksheets must be completed in the order I have put them in.

PREPARATION - B: EDITION

- Print, laminate, and cut the clue cards found on page 4.

I recommend either putting each clue in individual envelopes labeled, 'Clue 1, clue 2, etc'

OR putting each clue in a locked box (label boxes and keys with the clue number too).

Decide where you would like students to visit in your classroom to access each clue for set up.

For Digital Use, you can give the students a clue or all of the clues after they submit their completed worksheets.

- Print and photocopy, pages 5 – 12 for your students. Pages 5 and 12 are optional to print if you want to save paper. Staple together into booklets or put into a case file folder.
- Page 6 is a 'Possible Suspects' list, which students will need to keep handy for eliminating characters as they discover clues throughout this reading mystery.

<PLEASE CLICK HERE to ACCESS the WORKSHEETS ON DIGITALLY ON GOOGLE SLIDES>

➤ You will need to make a digital copy for each student

➤ Your students will need to be in 'edit' mode not 'present' mode to enter answers into the boxes.

HOW TO USE

You may wish to use the optional video hook to begin the activity first. Then continue to read page 5 to introduce the activity and state the case for your detectives.

Students will need to refer back to the suspect list (pg. 6) as they investigate. By the end, they should be able to narrow the suspect list down to just one character. The last character remaining (if done correctly) is the culprit!

Each activity page has a reading component, which is followed by either some questions, tasks or puzzles to solve. To make the word puzzles easier for your students, I have included an optional WORD BANK page in your folder download. After students complete the clue page activity, they must check-in with you to show their work. If you are satisfied with their work, grant them access to the clue for that clue number page.

Page 12 is an optional way to declare who the culprit is, with an opportunity for some extra writing. Encourage your students to write their elimination reasoning with each clue.

If your students are struggling with this activity, I recommend pausing frequently to discuss in groups or as a class. If you want to skip the clue preparation, you could also give to your class at the end of the lesson if satisfied with their work.

ANSWERS

Answers and an elimination guide are provided on pages 13 – 18.

AWARDS

On page 19 you will find some newspaper article awards. You can give these to students who solve the case correctly and provide enough evidence of course! Keep these hidden until solved.

If you need help, have any questions, or notice an error in my work please email me on

TALE TOWN'S DETECTIVE AGENCY HEADQUARTERS

Detective, your phone is ringing, answer it . . .

Prince Charming

"Detective, this is urgent. I need your help immediately! My love, my poor darling Snow White has been poisoned into a deep sleep again! She really must stop eating food from strangers."

You pull out your detective notepad and request Charming to calm down and explain the situation in more detail.

"I may have been a little late delivering her some flowers and chocolates for Valentine's Day. I was busy with a few royal duties this morning and forgot about the special occasion. I finally realized it was Valentine's Day by lunchtime, so I ran to the Candy Store and Florist to pick up some of Snow White's favorite chocolates and flowers. I visited her around 5:00 p.m., and when she didn't answer the door, I thought she was angry with me. I kept knocking for a while, and then I started to sing. She usually loves my singing, so I knew something was wrong when she still didn't answer. I walked around her cottage, and through the kitchen window, I saw her lying on the ground, surrounded by bananas, cookies, and an open box of chocolates. She is still breathing and snoring loudly, but she won't wake up. Please, I need you to investigate this case!"

Prince Charming

You agree to meet Charming at Snow White's cottage within the hour.

On the following pages you will be visiting locations and discovering clues. As you complete each page, go over your possible suspects list to see if any information discovered eliminates a character. The last suspect remaining is the one who poisoned Snow White.

1. VISIT LOCATION: SNOW WHITE'S COTTAGE

Prince Charming

"She won't wake up! I don't know what to do. Look over here, detective. I found this box of chocolates. It is full, with only one chocolate missing from the whole box. Very unusual indeed. She would normally eat most of them straight away."

"As I mentioned to the detective earlier on the phone, she really must stop eating food from strangers."

Prince Charming

"I didn't send this box. These smell like strawberry-filled chocolates; I usually buy Snow caramel-filled chocolates."

"Look at Snow White's hand. Her fingers have smears of melted chocolate. I think the one chocolate missing is the one she ate; it must be what poisoned her! The bananas and cookies seem untouched."

"But Charming, look at the lid of the box! The card on top says that the chocolates are from you!"

"Do you think that it could be Snow White's jealous stepmother, Regina, the Queen of Hearts, again?"

Doc the Dwarf

Regina, the Queen of Hearts

"Take them away! Lock them up! I don't have time for Prince Charming or this so-called brilliant detective!"

"Why did you poison Snow White again? What must we do to save her this time?"

"Hahaha! As little as I care about your precious Snow White, I can tell you that it wasn't me who did it this time. I've got better things to do, including not helping you. But, good to know that I am the fairest in the land once again."

"Or else what? Prove my guilt, then we'll see, but until then, my guards shall take you away on the count of three. I'll give you something extra to grieve if you do not leave. Now be gone before I send you to the dungeon below; it's been quite smelly in there lately, too!"

Prince Charming

"I don't believe you. Tell us the cure immediately or else . . ."

"Wait a moment, Gretel, we'll talk about this later. That wonderful Prince Charming is here with that detective."

"Oh, Charming, that is difficult to track because of Valentine's Day. We sold many boxes of chocolates over the past two days; remembering all of the customers and what they ordered is a blur. Sorry, I'm not much help, detective."

Gretel

"But, we need a variety to sell. Not everyone dislikes super sweet chocolate or sour chocolate."

Prince Charming

"Hello, I need to know who recently ordered a box of strawberry-filled chocolates from here?"

Gretel

"We didn't have much of the strawberry-filled boxes, so maybe we could check out our transactions and see if any names pop up."

"I'll help you look for it. I'm pretty sure it is somewhere near the cash register."

4. VISIT LOCATION: ROSE'S FLORIST SHOP

Prince Charming

"Hi Aurora, do you have poisonous plants in your shop?"

"I know that! Are there any flowers with the poison to send someone to sleep?"

Aurora

"Yes, lots of them are poisonous, but you know that you probably shouldn't eat the flowers, Charming."

"Probably not in here. I just look after the flowers, sell them, and know not to eat them. A couple of years ago, I pricked my finger on a spindle of a spinning wheel, which cursed me to sleep for one hundred years. Maleficent tried to have her revenge on me all because she wasn't invited to my party."

Prince Charming

"Yikes, I probably should have invited Maleficent to my birthday party; she can be such a party pooper, though. Someone poisoned Snow White into sleep, and she won't wake up. I'm hoping that we can find a cure if we can figure out what the poison is. The brilliant detective beside me is working hard on solving who did this to Snow White."

Aurora

"You should check with Belle in Tale Town Library. She might be able to help you find a book to discover a cure."

"Oh, chocolates, yummy! I love these! So sweet of you to bring these delightful treats, Charming!"

zzz...

Prince Charming

"No, don't eat those! I'm pretty certain they are all poisoned!"

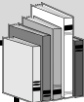

"Uh oh!"

But, before Charming mentions the word poison, Belle eats one of the chocolates. Then, with a big yawn, Belle points to aisle six and collapses to the ground; she begins to snore loudly!

You and Charming search aisle six for a book that might help Snow White and Belle wake up. Finally, after looking for a long time, you discover a book called 'The Complete Guide to Curses and Cures – 2nd Edition, written by Glinda the Good Witch of the North.' You open the book to read about sleeping curses.
